Property Management Services

If you've owned income property for any length of time, you know that managing a rental can be financially rewarding. At the same time, you've also likely discovered that while it may make sense to take the do-it-yourself approach if you're a handy person, live close to your property, and don't mind devoting several hours per month to the task, in many cases this just isn't practical---especially if you hope to expand your business. With this in mind, here are some critical tasks Equity Hawaii Real Estate (EHRE) Property Managers can help you with:

1. Setting the right rental rates: While looking through the classifieds to see what other landlords are charging for similar properties is a fine way to ballpark your rent price, EHRE Property Managers will conduct a thorough market study in order to set a rental price for your property, ensuring that you achieve the perfect balance between maximizing monthly income and maintaining a low vacancy rate.
2. Collecting and depositing monthly rent payments on time: If you've ever worked in a billing department, you know that securing payment from clients can be difficult, not to mention awkward. EHRE Property Managers have efficient, tried-and-true systems in place to effectively collect rent and maintain on-time payments. You'll find this particularly important if you have a limited number of properties and collecting payments on time is crucial to maintaining your cash flow.
3. Marketing and advertising your property: Through experience, EHRE Property Managers will know exactly where to market your property and how to craft compelling advertising materials---a significant advantage when it comes to filling your properties quickly and avoiding long vacancies.
4. Finding the right tenants: EHRE Property Managers are experts at finding good tenants, and will take care of all the details, which include securing all criminal background and security checks, running credit reports, verifying employment, and collecting previous landlord references.
5. Managing tenants: In addition to finding good tenants, EHRE Property Managers will manage all aspects of the tenant-landlord relationship. An EHRE Property Manager will handle both routine and emergency maintenance, take care of routine inspections, and manage any situations where conflict resolution is required.
6. Managing vendor relationships: EHRE Property Managers have relationships with maintenance workers, tradesmen, contractors, suppliers, and vendors that it's almost impossible for an independent landlord to duplicate. Not only will your property manager get you the best work for the best price, they'll oversee any necessary maintenance projects.

7. Ensuring that you're in compliance with housing regulations and property laws: There is a multitude of applicable laws and regulations to abide by when renting and maintaining your rental property. These include local, state and federal regulations, as well as fair housing regulations (such as the ADA). EHRE Property Managers can help you avoid lawsuits by keeping your property up-to-date and in compliance with these regulations.
8. Maximizing the profitability of your time: By having an EHRE Property Manager take care of the day-to-day aspects of running your income property, you're free to spend your time identifying further investment opportunities or otherwise furthering your career.
9. Maximizing the profitability of your money: The goal of our service is to maximize your income and minimize your expenses. EHRE's management fee is 10% of gross monthly income and is usually tax deductible (please consult your accountant). Most property managers charge a percentage of your property's monthly rental rate in exchange for their services. The rate typically runs anywhere from 6-12%, which is generally less than the money you save by hiring a professional to take care of your property.

"A new perspective of care, when it comes to your investment."
